From the Publisher

Morton's List: The End to Boredom is such a revolutionary new concept that it requires a fully-staffed company to back it. It is the first Real Life Game (RLG), and as such, is spearheading an entire movement towards merging "game" with "life." The potential of this new genre is limitless, which will carry Morton's List to international renown. Already it is spreading throughout the English-speaking world, with plans to be translated into several foreign languages. Boredom is universal, and thus so is Morton's List. It offers players an unlimited range of fun activities to do, often expanding horizons, and opening minds.

Seven years in creation, Morton's List has been carefully written and crafted to perfectly balance all the diverse activities it contains. Everything from text to art to packaging was specifically chosen to enhance the feel and effect of the game. No expense was spared in production, and all materials from book to dice to dice pouch are of the highest quality.

Morton's List is extremely popular among people who are open to new experiences, willing to let go and let the game decide their fate. People who are bored, and really want to not be bored. It's that simple. Typically, people who meet this description are younger, open-minded, outgoing (or willing to set their fears aside), and ready for anything. Social class or lifestyle have little to do with it. No matter what a person identifies with, the game includes it.

This game will live up to its amazing potential.

From the Author

It took three minds over seven years to create this game. Enjoy it. It is a living work, not meant for a shelf. If you aren't using it, give it to someone who will. Its purpose is to end boredom, pure and simple.
